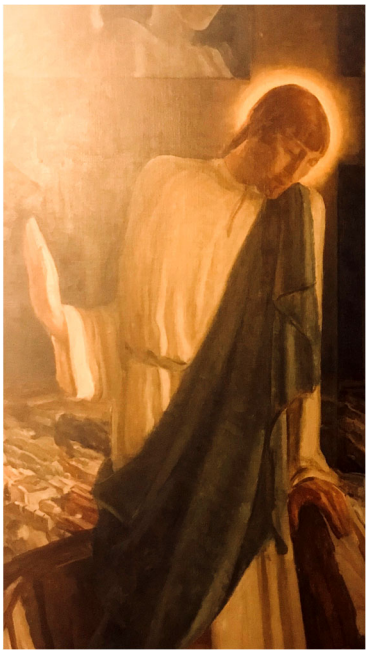
"I will rather boast most gladly of my weaknesses, in order that the power of Christ may dwell with me".
— 2 Corinthians 12:9



In the Gospel today Jesus experiences a phenomenon common even today, the idea that "you can never be a prophet in your own land." In our modern time this remains often the case. Sometimes to be taken seriously by the community one grows up in, one has to go off somewhere else, prove oneself and then return with a new unknown story to heralded as a success by one's family and "hometown." This holds true for Jesus, when he returns home he is remembered as the son of Mary, a simple carpenter with a family and a story that is known to all. They cannot imagine that such a person is capable of the great and mysterious wisdom that Jesus demonstrates while teaching in the temple. The gospel says that Jesus is "amazed at their lack of faith." And we can imagine he may have been hurt as well, to be disregarded by his own community, who have known him the longest and from whom he might have hoped for support and affirmation. Their lack of faith blinds them to the truth of who Jesus had become, still the son of Mary who they know, but also the Son of God, doing his Father's work in the world.

This Gospel reading is a good reminder to us that we need not always look far to find wisdom and understanding. Everyone we meet has the possibility to teach us something, to learn from us, and to perhaps even help us come closer in our relationship to God. Certainly, this is not always the case, but if we enter into interactions with our brothers and sisters with an open heart we will have the best chance of recognizing those among us who may be able to help us on our spiritual journey, and who we might help in return.

The Highway Mission Bells

The modern El Camino Real was one of the first state highways in California. Given the lack of standardized road signs at the time, it was decided to place distinctive bells along the route, hung on supports in the form of an 11-foot high shepherd's crook, also described as "a Franciscan walking stick."

The first of 450 bells was unveiled in 1906 at the Plaza Church in the Pueblo near Olvera Street in Los Angeles. By 1913, over 450 markers were placed on this historic route and at the mission sites.

The bells were first paid for and erected by the El Camino Real Association in the early 1900s. The Association fragmented in the mid-20s and the Automobile Club of Southern California and associated groups cared for the bells through 1931. The State took over bell maintenance in 1933. Due to simple loss through the relocation or rerouting of highways and roads, theft and vandalism, the number of bells dwindled to about 75.

The State began replacing them, at first with concrete and later with iron. The California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) began a complete restoration effort in 1996. The program resulted in the installation of 555 El Camino Real Bell Markers from San Francisco to San Diego by 2005. The bell marker system was completed as originally envisioned with bells approximately 1-2 miles apart on the historic route of the California Mission Trail.

There are mission bell signs located at each of the Missions as well. The Bell Marker consists of a cast metal bell set atop a crooked pipe column that is attached to a concrete foundation. The bells are exact copies of the original 1906 bells; in fact, the original bell molds were used to fabricate the bells. They bear the inscription "1769 to 1906".

Check the median outside the Mission on Rio Road. There is a marker there and another one up the road on the corner of Rio and Santa Lucia Avenue. There is one near the Customs House in Monterey as well as a number around the site of the Monterey Presidio.

The Indispensable Men:
Peter, Paul, and the Missionary Adventure

Bishop Barron calls Peter and Paul "two indispensable men, the ones without whom the church never would have emerged and survived." In telling each man's story, Bishop Barron shows how the Holy Spirit worked through all the apostles and disciples to build the Church. Following the trail of these apostles as they took the Gospel to the ends of the earth, Bishop Barron presents the foundations of the apostolic faith, particularly the revelation of Christ's resurrection from the dead.

"The Story of the Mustard Seed"

Tradition has it that the padres had brought mustard seeds from Spain, and sprinkled then along the trail between missions. When the seeds grew into stalks, they marked the trail with a blaze of color. This pathway bordered in brilliant yellow is said to have guided wayfarers from Mission to Mission. In this way the mustard plants helped to make El Camino Real the golden trail stretching from San Diego to Sonoma. The Mustard seed is available in a pendant, a pocket stone and a visor clip.

In the story of the Mustard Seed, even with Faith the size of this tiny seed, you can still move mountains. These real seeds are reminders that with just a little Faith, anything is possible!
