Gospel Give to the one who asks of you, and do not turn your back on one who wants to borrow. (Mt 5:38-48)

In the Gospel today Jesus continues his Sermon on the Mount and continues to expand on the ancient law. Where once it was acceptable to take an eye for an eye, Jesus now tells us we must offer no violence or resistance to those who would harm us. We are to love our enemies and pray for those who persecute us. It is easy to admire the teachings of Jesus, but difficult at times to follow them, especially ones that ask us to do the seemingly impossible. How can we be “perfect, just as your Heavenly Father is perfect” when know we are anything but? One answer can be found in St. Paul’s letter to the Corinthians; “ Do you not know that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you?” In each of us dwells the spirit of our God, who spent his dying words praying for his crucifiers, “Father, forgive them, they know not what they do.” (Luke 23:34) Jesus’ demands of us, his disciples, are difficult because they require us to strip away hatred, anger, pettiness, and often underlying fear from our relationships and interactions. When we are overwhelmed with anger, jealousy, fear or despair, perfection can seem far away. In those moments we have the consolation of the psalmist, “He pardons all your iniquities, heals all your ills. He redeems your life from destruction, crowns you with kindness and compassion.” To be perfect is to reflect what we are created to be, an image of the living God, a dwelling for his Spirit. Consider how different our world would be if we could see everyone in this light, especially ourselves?

LITURGY VAULT

Communion Under One or Both Kinds

Here, the Second Vatican Council refers to the “dogmatic principles” of the Council of Trent (1545-1563):

“This has always been the belief of the Church of God that immediately after the consecration the true body and blood of our Lord, together with his soul and divinity, exist under the species of bread and wine. The body exists under the species of bread and the blood under the species of wine by virtue of the words. But the body, too, exists under the species of wine, the blood under the species of bread, and the soul under both species in virtue of the natural connection and concomitance by which the parts of Christ the Lord, who has already risen from the dead and will die no more, are united together” (Council of Trent, Session XIII, 11 October 1551: Denzinger, n. 1640).

The General Instruction of the Roman Missal outlines the principles for distributing Holy Communion under both kinds, making several references to this teaching of the Council of Trent, assuming that “no one today calls into doubt in any way the doctrinal principles on the complete efficacy of Eucharistic Communion under the species of bread alone” (n. 14). The General Instruction goes on to say that “pastors should take care to ensure that the faithful who participate in the rite or are present at it are as fully aware as possible of the Catholic teaching on the form of Holy Communion as set forth by the Ecumenical Council of Trent” (n. 282), which in another place said:

“The council declares that, although our Redeemer at the Last Supper [...] instituted and distributed this sacrament to the apostles under two species: nevertheless, it must be confessed that even under only one of the two species the whole and entire Christ and the true sacrament is received; and, therefore, with respect to the fruit of the sacrament, those who receive under only one species are not deprived of any grace necessary for salvation” (Council of Trent, Session XXI, 16 July 1562: Denzinger, n. 1729).

Perhaps Saint Thomas Aquinas summarized it best: “Nothing is lost by the body being received by the people without the blood: because the priest both offers and receives the blood in the name of all, and the whole Christ is present under either species” (Summa Theologiae, III, q. 80, a. 12, ad 3).

Ashes for Ash Wednesday are made from old palms from Palm Sunday. Please bring your old palms to the Basilica or to the Blessed Sacrament Chapel between Sunday, February 9th and Sunday, February 23rd.

Taizé Prayer Service

A Taizé prayer service offers an opportunity to still the busy-ness in our lives, our minds and our hearts and turn our thoughts over to God. A core element to Taizé is the repetition of simple musical chants, the duration of each chant is not pre-determined and the act of repetition, common to many forms of meditation and worship, allows our minds to quiet and our focus to deepen. The other principal element of Taizé worship is a generous use of silence. True periods of silence can create a unique moment for a meeting with God. In addition, Taizé liturgies incorporate readings from the sacred scriptures and communal intercessions. At our Taizé services during the Lenten season we incorporate a prayer around the cross, an opportunity for all present to bring themselves and their concerns, physically or in their hearts, to the foot of the cross to share them with our loving God, and leave refreshed and comforted for the week ahead.

The roots of the Taizé prayer come from the south of Burgundy, France. Over seventy years ago in a village called Taizé, Brother Roger Schutz founded a monastic community devoted to prayer and reconciliation. The community there is comprised of brothers from all over the world and all major Christian denominations who gather three times a day, seven days a week to pray. In busy times, many people go on pilgrimage to Taizé to experience this unique form of prayer and there can be upwards of 7000 people at a service! Many more people experience Taizé in their faith communities at home, as this style of worship has grown in popularity around the world.

At the Carmel Mission we offer Taizé Prayer Around the Cross on Wednesdays during Lent beginning Wednesday, March 4 through April 1 at 7pm in the Basilica. Please come and spend an hour in prayer and meditation with your community, further exploring your own Lenten journey and availing yourself of a chance to rest and focus on your relationship with God. We look forward to praying with you!
The Stations of the Cross

The Stations of the Cross in the Carmel Mission are 14 Oil on Canvas paintings believed to be painted in 1802 in Mexico City, Mexico, but they could have been painted in Guadalajara.

The artist was Jose Maria Uriarte. He was an active, known painter by at least 1813. After 1821 (Mexican Independence), Uriarte became the director of the new “School of Fine Arts” within the Institute of Sciences in Guadalajara, Mexico. His main surviving work is a suite of 17 oval paintings and other works in the Cathedral of Guadalajara.

The date that is noted in the records of the early furnishings for the Mission is 1802 and that date is written on the back of the 14th Station along with the painter’s name. However, in other record pages, the date of 1808 was also found.

The Stations would have been framed at the mission. The frames were changed in the mid 1800s. The back of the 6th Station is signed by the framer Juan Bonafacio and dated 1856. The Stations were scientifically cleaned and restored during the 1990’s.

The Stations of the Cross mark the passion and crucifixion of Christ. Each Station represents a particular incident on the path of Christ to the crucifixion often called the Way of the Cross or the Via Dolorosa. The object of the Stations is to help the faithful to make, in spirit, a pilgrimage to the chief scenes of Christ’s sufferings and death.

The erection and use of the Stations were not in general use in Catholic Churches until the end of the 1600s. The Pope granted a Franciscan petition to erect the Stations in all their churches and declared that indulgences could be attained for making the Way of the Cross as if the person had actually visited the scenes of Christ’s Passion.

In 1731, the number of Stations was fixed at 14. By 1862, the Stations of the Cross could be erected by churches other than the Franciscans. They are now found in almost every Catholic Church in some way or form.

Parishioners are cordially invited to attend the “Docent Dialog” on Friday, March 6 at noon in Crespi Hall. This session will listen to the voice history tapes of Mission Curator Harry Downie as he explains the construction techniques used to restore the Carmel Mission. Join the Docents, bring your lunch and listen to Mission history by one of the people who made it.

This insight into the Mission history was provided by the Carmel Mission Docent Association. If you would like to find out more about becoming a Docent, please contact Nancy Hardy at nhardycarmel@att.net or 831-624-8846.

Heavenly Sounds

The objective of our parish campaign this year is to enhance the sound and musical experience in our Basilica and to repair our Casavant Organ.

2019 AMA: Renew a Pew
Our successful Renew a Pew Campaign had more donors and raised a larger amount than any other parish in our Diocese.

All pews were fully restored and enhanced with seat cushions, which will provide comfort to future generations.

2018 AMA: Crespi Hall Renovation
The Crespi Hall campaign transformed our parish hall into a warm and inviting meeting space for our parish community and ministries.

The fully remodeled kitchen, bathroom, and storage areas, along with the addition of a small conference room and new audio visual system have made Crespi the center of hospitality at the Mission.
