FR. PAUL'S MESSAGE

Dear Friend of Carmel Mission,

One cannot say that Job was a shining example of positivity and hope. Indeed, quite the opposite. But, while brutal, there is something refreshing about the honesty he speaks in the first reading. Have we all not felt similarly at times? Doesn't the world sometimes feel both frenetic and pointless? Have we not all experienced heartbreak and hopelessness? Are we working to live, or living to work? What is the right balance between work and the rest of life? Is there meaning and joy to be found in this life, or only in the next? Misery loves company, and thus we can feel heartened that is not just us who feel this way, but that these feelings are a significant enough part of the human experience to be expressed in Holy Scripture. Despite being the greatest curmudgeon, doomsayer, and depressive of his time, Job is not abandoned by God. He sometimes feels abandoned, and is not afraid to let God, and everyone else, know it. But God remains in Job's life, hearing his complaints, suffering beside him, and offering the comfort and compassion God knows Job needs.

In the Gospel we see Jesus hard at work healing, driving out demons, and preaching the Good News. Day and night people bring Him the sick and tortured and He responds with endless energy and compassion. This Gospel can be difficult to digest if we praying for healing for ourselves or a loved one, and have not yet experienced the cure Simon's mother-in-law received. Why do we have to suffer? Why have our prayers not been answered in the way we desire? These are the difficult, honest questions Jesus wants us to bring to Him. God's ways are deeply mysterious. But in all things, the promise of the psalm holds true. The people of God are not exempt from the tragedies of this broken world. But God promises to mend our heartbreaks – all of them – eventually. God's very Self binds up our wounds, tending to them with care and patience, and nursing us back to wholeness. This week I invite you to join me in taking some time to bring a heartbreak, past or present, into the presence of God. Let us thank God for whatever ways this pain has been healed, and pray for further healing.

I wish you and your loved ones blessings of good health and new hope. Please continue to pray for peace,

Fr. Paul

Scripture Reflection

Mark's depiction of Jesus is often noted for its frenetic pace, and that whirlwind is on full display in this passage. Jesus meets need after need, and He responds time and time again. He heals those with whom He has a connection, and those who come to Him as strangers. All who encounter Him are changed forever by that encounter. Indeed, Jesus does not simply restore them people to their former state of well-being. Rather physical healings are outer ward signs of deeper transformations of body, mind, and spirit. Regardless of what stands in our way of being able to receive and share the good news, Jesus binds up or casts out, releasing the power within us to experience and pass on God's love. In the second reading, St. Paul says there is not much choice in the matter. When one has experienced God's gracious healing love, one is obliged to tell it forth. We see in Simon's mother-in-law, that her healing frees her to pursue her ministry of caring for Jesus and His disciples. This is not much discussed in the Gospels, but it was certainly a crucial support of Jesus' earthly ministry. Without the care and practical support of people like Simon's mother-in-law, Jesus would have been hard pressed to keep up His grueling schedule of preaching, healing, and driving out demons. Even in the grip of such a frenetic and vigorous schedule, Jesus prioritizes the time for prayer. He rises early, before the crowds can catch Him, and finds a deserted place. Even more than food and rest, He needs time spent with His Father in prayer to regroup and recharge Himself for the work ahead. In our first reading, Job laments the pace of human life as too quick and too busy. Jesus shares in the quickness and the busyness, but He shows us it is not in vain. When a human life makes God more present on the earth it is worth it. But we cannot do this alone; Jesus' retreat to prayer is key to making meaning out of what could have seemed like a drudgery.

ACT OF SPIRITUAL COMMUNION

My Jesus,
I believe that You are present in the Most Holy Sacrament.
I love You above all things,
and I desire to receive You into my soul.
Since I cannot at this moment
receive You sacramentally,
come at least spiritually into my heart.
I embrace You as if You were already there and unite myself wholly to You.
Never permit me to be separated from You.
Amen.

Altar Flowers Opportunity

Here at Carmel Mission we are very fortunate to be surrounded by natural beauty in our wonderful gardens, and we receive feedback from parishioners and visitors alike on how much they enjoy the flowers, plants and trees on our property. The beauty of nature is a concrete reminder of the beauty of God, in whose image we are made. When we enjoy beautiful flowers, plants and trees we are celebrating God's gift of the natural world.

We are so happy to continue the beauty of altar flowers at our Masses each week. We invite you to consider sponsoring a bouquet for $90 in memory or honor of a loved one, to celebrate a birthday or anniversary, or in thanksgiving to God.

The altar flowers will be a part of our weekend Masses and your dedication will be included in our weekly e-bulletin.

Please contact Laura at liturgy@carmelmission.org for more information and to schedule your gift. Thank you so much for your generosity and for helping to ensure that these symbols of beauty and life are part of our weekly celebrations.

FIRST LIBRARY OF CALIFORNIA

As promised in the previous update on the Convento Library project, I'd like to focus our attention today on the travels our books have undertaken to get to where they are now, that is, Carmel Mission. Some books have traveled far and wide until they landed here, seen many things, surely, and as they say, if they could talk, what tales they would tell. How do we know where they came from and where they have "lived"? Oftentimes someone will write not only their own name in a book, as a sign of ownership, but also some information as to the place where the book belongs. This might be indicated with an inscribed note, a stamp, or some sort of bookplate. These marks are usually called by their Latin term, "ex libris," meaning "from the books [of]." They help us to determine a book's provenance, which is to say, a chain of ownership of people or places.

I had mentioned previously that Saint Junipero did not write his name in books. He did, however, inscribe some books with a note that they belonged to Mission San Carlos. I've been able to determine through handwriting comparisons that Father Serra wrote the Mission name on the title page in about a dozen of the books we currently have in our Mission library. The inscription usually reads "Mision de San Carlos de Monte-Rey." We can tell that it is his own handwriting based on several factors, most notably his capital "M" and the long down stroke in the middle:

But where did these books come from originally, before the Franciscans brought them to the various missions in Alta California? Most of the 550 volumes we now have were published in Spain, mostly in Madrid. Some few were actually printed in Mexico City, while others, mostly those in Latin, came from Germany, Belgium or France. They would have been collected by Franciscan librarians in Spain and sent on to the missionary houses in Mexico City. Many of our books came from the Franciscan college of San Fernando, founded in 1734 in Mexico City as the mother house of all Franciscan missionary activity in New Spain. About twenty or so of our books carry a mark from San Fernando, either as an inscription or as an imprint on the top or bottom edges of the book block.

CARMEL MISSION
BASILICA

FIRST LIBRARY OF CALIFORNIA

Once the books arrived in Mexico, they would have formed a sizeable library in Mexico City. From there, certain books would have traveled with the Franciscans to their own distant missions to form the nucleus of their libraries. Once in Baja or Alta California, some books might have been loaned to others, or traveled to newly founded missions.

After the missions were secularized and abandoned in the 1830s and 1840s, the libraries were scattered to the wind. Some books went to rectories or parish libraries, some into private homes, while others went to various Franciscan institutions. We have library stamps in our books that indicate a sojourn in places like the Franciscan Convent in Santa Barbara, the Franciscan retirement residence in Phoenix, Arizona, as well as other missions, such as San Luis Rey.

As the missions were restored and property returned, our books began to return as well. About 30 books came back in 1931 from the Rectory in Santa Cruz. They were identified as belonging to Mission San Carlos by their unique shelf marks. This return is documented in notes written in pen on the title pages. Others came from various places, especially the parish in Monterey, as Harry Downie began putting the library back together again in the 1950s and 1960s. One source was the old diocesan library at Mission San Fernando, assembled there in 1969. The bookplate, in Latin, indicates that these books came from the "library of the diocese of Monterey and (Los) Angeles."

Our books have been on an amazing journey. They have now come to a well-deserved rest in their home here in Carmel, and they will thankfully be with us for many more years to come.
